

An Overview of Fuse19

Fuse19 exists at the intersection of business and education -- it is a conference for exploring the possibilities of design thinking, the maker movement, entrepreneurship and innovation. Hosted by the Mount Vernon Institute for Innovation (MVIFI) and Mount Vernon Presbyterian School (MVPS), this multi-day experience brings leaders from education and corporate industries around the country to Atlanta, with the intent to inspire transformative impact and change. Participants will gain hands-on experience to build capacity as learners and leaders within their organizations and innovation teams.

Council on Innovation

Wednesday, June 5, 9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.

An invite-only think tank for mapping a set of possible futures for the collaboration among schools and businesses.

Fuse Talks

Wednesday, June 5, 5:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

A series of nationally renowned speakers from education and the business sector who will share TED-talk-like provocations and inspirations for exploring the frontiers of design for innovation in today's world and tomorrow's future.

Fuse Sessions

Thursday and Friday, June 6-7, 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

A diverse set of three-hour workshop sessions provide participants opportunities for deep dives into various topics centered on a myriad of design, maker and innovation topics.

Fuse Design Briefs

Thursday and Friday, June 6-7, 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

An intensive design thinking experience in which participants provide design-thinking collaboration with for-profit or not-for-profit company partners while receiving expert coaching and guidance.
